

Examples of BioBlitz Events

Planning a BioBlitz is easier than you think! This fun, citizen science focused event is a fantastic way to get people involved on your course, even those that don't golf!

Your event can be designed in anyway you desire. Some examples of successful BioBlitz events are listed below:

The Safari – This is when participants follow one another around the course pointing out the numerous species they come across. You can use golf carts or walk. Often times local specialists that are knowledgeable in a particular field make great leaders of the group!

The Golfer – This is when you distribute wildlife scorecards (in toolkit) to the golfers on your course. Give them to the starters and your ProShop to be sure everyone gets one. Collect them at the end of their rounds!

Tike Trek – This is when you host a youth group to inventory the species on your course. Organize into groups with a leader to survey the course, and don't forget to order our FREE activity books for after the event!

Please feel free to design an event of your own or utilize numerous examples at once! Be sure to let us know how it goes!

Questions? Email kelsey@auduboninternational.org